

Packera aurea

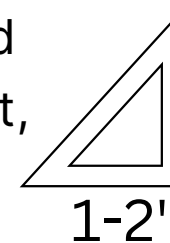

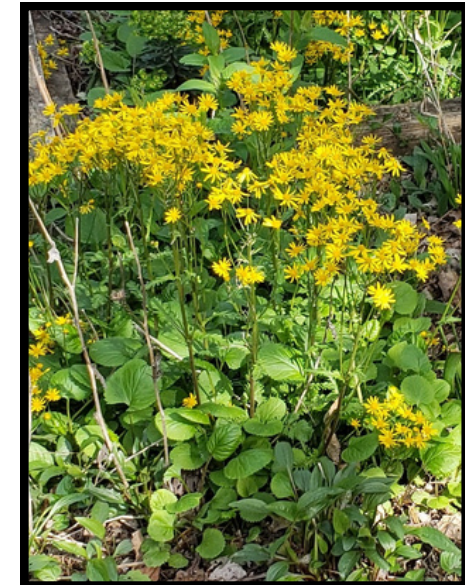

Golden Ragwort

Bright golden yellow flowers shoot up in April, replacing dark purple buds. The rest of the year it is an evergreen groundcover that spreads/fills in quickly in most conditions. Great for preventing erosion or replacing invasive plants. Will grow almost anywhere. Will spread!

Rabbit and deer resistant.

Wildlife Value: Host plant for Vanessa virginiensis (American Lady) caterpillar. Attracts specialist bees and beneficial insects that help control pests. Provides nectar for the Orange Sulphur, Monarch, Variegated Fritillary, Eastern Black Swallowtail, Pearl Crescent, and Red Admiral butterflies.

DISCOVER THE POWER OF NATIVE PLANTS
BLOOM WILD
www.bloom-wild.com